SINCERITY

(MY FRIEND.)

No little word of mine may tell,
The thoughts that fill my heart,
That God may bless you day and night
I pray, and if we part
That on your pathway, where so-e'er
Your walk in life may lead.
That you'll remember me, and feel
I am your friend indeed.

If when the world should coldly frown
And sadness fills your breast,
Weary you gaze around in vain—
In vain for rest.
Then think of one whose heart is true,
And come to me love in your need,
Oh! then remember me, and prove
I am your friend indeed.
